National Scorecard on Compassion Released

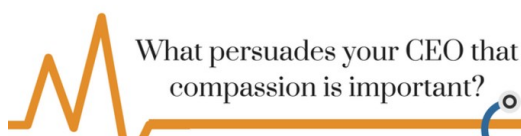

Through support from the Arthur Vining Davis Foundations, we've released initial results from a national poll of clinicians and patients on the state of compassionate care delivery. As a follow-up to our original national survey conducted in 2010, the new data suggests that the healthcare system has been making some progress in moving towards more patient-centered care, but still faces critical challenges, especially from the perspective of physicians and nurses.

Profiles in Compassion: Dr. Ritu Trivedi-Purohit

Dr. Trivedi-Purohit has always been drawn to compassionate care. Her patients’ “great resilience, inner strength and drive to be well” inspired her to focus on making the lives of those impacted by cancer more manageable. This led her to create her company, thriveosity, whose goal is to help fill the gaps in cancer care to meet patients’ medical, but also personal and emotional needs.

We're seeking talented candidates to fill the following roles at the Schwartz Center:

- Senior Director of Development
- Senior Accountant
- Director of Programs and Partnerships
- Executive Assistant
- Development and Events Intern – Fall 2017
