2016 NCCY Award Nominations - Due March 31!

There's still time to nominate a deserving health care professional or team of health care professionals for the 2016 National Compassionate Caregiver of the Year (NCCY) Award. The NCCY Award recognizes caregivers who display extraordinary acts of devotion and compassion in caring for patients and families. Special thanks to Modern Healthcare, the media sponsor for this year's award, for their generous support.
Deadline: 3/31 | Nominate now

Remaining Resilient on the Front Lines of Care

In the face of trauma and emotional suffering, what skills and tools can health care professionals develop to sustain resiliency? How can organizations and systems support caregivers, enabling them to continue to provide the best possible care for patients and families? On April 28, the Schwartz Center will convene a panel of experts from the front lines of care who will address this question and more during "Remaining Resilient on the Front Lines of Care," the first of two Compassion in Action Symposium events hosted by the Schwartz Center in 2016.

Compassion in Action Symposium Series: Boston

Education, has published an important article about the science and practice of compassionate health care. Written by Schwartz Center Medical Director Dr. Beth Lown, "A Social Neuroscience-informed Model for Teaching and Practicing Compassion in Health Care," explores the latest neuroscience research underlying how clinicians process skills and actions that shape a compassionate care experience. Based on her work, we now better understand the role of compassion as an antidote to the rising epidemic of clinician burnout. Learn more about what we're doing to train and support caregivers.
